INDIAN UNREST.

a wholesale display of force or by 'a severe course of repression. The campaign of misrepresentation and invective, accompanied by demonstrations of disloyalty and attempts at terrorism, together with the organis ed boycott, which began in Bengal has made its way into the Punjab, to the great disgust of the loyal Mohammedans. The removal of a few leaders' to distant places of seclusion has had a quieting effect and the deportation of another agitator from Amritaar, announced last week, will help to convince the others that their occupation is not for ever to be tolerated. The Circular sent by the Indian Government to local Governments pointing out the measures that may reasonably be taken to prevent schools and colleges from being nurseries of sedition seems also to be a step in the direction of the restoration of tranquility. Very welcome, too, is the resolution reported this morning empowering local Governments to prosecute newspapers that publish articles inciting to disturbance. The patural tendency of observers at home in presence of sedition in India is to arge the Indian Government to put it down with a strong hand. That is a tendency to which we do not wish to yield. The Indian Government, is better informed than any observers here, and is more keenly aware of the possible consequence of its action than can be any critics in this country. It is not only informed but responsible. Accordingly the duty of good, citizens in this country is to uphold the Indian Government in every possible way, even to the extent of remembering that every human Government is liable to make mistakes and therefore of abstaining from microscopic criticism of its action.

One of the chief difficulties of any Government, which like that of Great Britain is organised upon democratic principles in so far that it is responsible to a Parliament, is that in dealing with the affairs of distant countries, specially of countries of different society and speech from our own, there is always the possibility of criticisms made upon it in the ordinary course of Parliamentary life being misinterpreted at the other end of the tele; graph wire. If one party is in office, and the other party, being in opposition, discusses freely the executive or other acts of the Government, persons at a distance may infer that this country is divided and therefore has no strong will. Such an impression, if it should be produced or encouraged in India just now, would be most unfortunate. We venture to hope that it will not be produced. It is fortunate that the Viceroy of India appointed by the late Government has the confidence of their successors. It is fortunate that the responsibility to Parliament for the government of India is in the hands of Mr. Morley, in whose character and ability both parties have complete confidence. There are, of course, many who do not agree with some of Mr. Morley's political theories, theories which we have often had occasion to criticise. But . SUBSCRIPTIONS Mr. Morley is a worker, a great student, an administrator of more than ordinary power, There is no fear in his case of a failure to grasp the nature of a situation, or of a weakness in decision or in tenacity of parpose. His conduct and that of the Government of India in dealing with the agitation and the disturbances in India will hardly be the subject of criticism from the Opposition. It would, we venture to think, be a misfortune if any embarrassement. were caused him by lack of sympathy from among those who are as a rule the supporters > representative methods and a constitutional system into India, is that of overthrow of the British Government as soon as possible, by the plan of passive resistance and of a strike of all natives in Government employ, and if that fails then by conflict. While such a theory is preached in India it appears to us that no Englishman, whatever his theory of Government may be can without injuring his country and India; express sympathy with any form of Indian propaganda. In doing so he would be playing with fire. In India it is the class that has had the benefit of European instruction that expresses extreme doctrines, and observers in England should bear in mind that these doctrines are preached to people unaccustomed to political debate and still more to that political action which is part of the daily life of the people of this country. Those who would support the Indian Government in measures for restricting the liberty of the Indian Press to spread denunciations of the British administration do so on the ground that the conditions of India are not those of England. Here, there are always newspapers on both sides. There is no

The Italian Consular Agent at Larnaca reports, according to the Moniteur Officiel du Commerce, that the Cyprus carob yield in 1906 is considered to have been one of the most remarkable of late years. The total yield of the island is stated as 300,000 Aleppo cantars, or about 69,000 tons. In January last ten steamers were loading in all 15,000 tons for England, six sailing vessels were to take 2,500 tons of caronbs to France, and five others with 2,400 tons were to sail for Spain, while another 500 tons were destined for Italy. AT THE RACES

Dear Sir,-The correspondence which has

has been surely rather "instructive" then welcome these "undesirables" and cannot d tinguish between ladies of the full world and those of the "half world." This short sightedness is doubtless due to their greater familiarity with the latter type, owing to constant intercourse and association with them. These poor "ladies" are rightly described as "more less due to the fact that "Don Juan," "Impartial,", "Diogenes" and company feel for their wives and sisters, and for this small formation of a member's enclosure at future meetings.-I enclose my card and beg to

> Yours truly IBN EL BELAD.

Mansura, June 8th 1907.

Dear Sir, - Without wishing to prolong in any way the discussion in your columns of the question of the admission of "undesirables," to the grounds of the Alexandria Sporting Club, may I point out that the same evil exists at almost every race course in the world, and that the average man or woman of the world has long since learnt to shrug his or her shoulders at its existence. If you, attempt to exclude persons as "undesirable" you must prove that the persons excluded are what they are accused of being at the time of their exclusion, your evidence must be convincing and derived not from tittle-tattle or from merely circumstantial evidence supplied by rakish hats and artificial complexions, but from the testimony of unimpeachable witnesses. Now it seems to me The period of 12 months which, according that these witnesses will not be forthcoming in to the Brooklands agreement, must elapse the majority of cases for obvious reasons, and before any alteration in the scale of wages can anything like an attempt to exclude persons on take place in the Lancashire spinning trade, insufficient testimony may well lead to libel will expire on June 13, and in view of the actions. I cannot help thinking that a lady prosperity of the trade the operatives have whose peculiarities of dress or manner caused made an application for an advance of 5 per her to be wrongfully excluded as an "undesiretc. cent in the wages of spinners and cardroom able from any public meeting place, would Until-1886-1887 it appears that this article, operatives. Only you must not be surprised if such victims of your seal show a strong dislike to be "reclaimed" or reformed, and a great disbelief in your assertion that you are indulging in these outbursts of moral vigour for their good or for the good of society. You brutalise and degrade them still further, and by adding to the sum total of degradation you degrade society, which cannot benefit from the existence of a class of outcomes. Lastly may I say that it seems to have been forgotten by some of your contributors that 'charity' is La cote continue à fléchir sur la plupart des Christian virtue, and, if we are to attach any in that it can raise even the lowest, -Yours, etc.

CINEMATOGRAPHE PATHE

Le Cinématographe Pathé a toujours même succès ; hier la salle regorgeait d monde et plusieurs passages du programme ont été vivement applaudis tant pour la beauté du sujet que pour la netteté de l'exécution. Voici le programme, complètement inédit, de la semaine, à partir de ce soir : Le domestique se venge - Les apprentissages de Boireau - Les chiens policiers - Les lapins du professeur Virus - Boubouroche bu et boîra toujours - Amour d'esclave - La lutte pour la vie.

Programme, comme on le voit, excessivement varié, où se rencontrent des scènes d'un comique achevé, des scènes de genre, et des scènes dramatiques, habilement alternées.

ATTACK ON THE LORDS.

CHANCES OF DISSOLUTION:

LONDON, June 9. Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman, speaking at their employers. Plymouth, said that Ireland must now wait and see what the Liberals were prepared to offer, in the future. His speech, which was a lengthy one, was devoted to an attack on the the Lords. The time for compromise and temporising expostulation; he said, was past. We must give the Lords to understand that the people must be master of their own house. He urged the Liberals to keep the fighting line strong and unbroken. The existance of posing. FRANCE, JAPAN, AND AMERICA.

WASHINGTON, June 8. France has offered her good offices to promote a stable understanding between America and Japan. The State Department is dubious regarding the possibility of putting the offer to practical use but received it in the cordial spirit in which it was made. It was added that the only negotiations likely to take place in the near future will relate to an immigration treaty: Nothing had arisen to preclude direct dealing with reference to it.
